BALTIMORE, MD - EMP Collective's Cans n Drafts series promotes new and original works. This fall, the Cans n Drafts series offered its first ever FREE Writing Workshop. Local aspiring authors jumped at the opportunity to participate and will read from new works developed and written during the workshop. Selected pieces will come in all shapes and sizes, including poetry, fiction, and stage scripts. Come join EMP in celebrating new works from local writers Eric Bowers, Brad Leroy Cartwright, Tracy Dimond, Ken Jordan, Cari Peri, Steve Mandes and Debra Smith.

Entrance includes access to EMP's current gallery, Girls & Skulls, by Craig Horky.

Friday, 12/2, 7PM, FREE

ABOUT EMP COLLECTIVE

Founded in 2010, EMP Collective is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to creating and producing multi-media events by collaborating with artists from all backgrounds, across disciplines. EMP Collective hopes to nourish emerging artists with its new incubator space (creatively named EMP) at 306 W Redwood Street, in the forgotten Loft District of Baltimore. Funded by the Downtown Partnership of Baltimore's Operation Storefront grant, this multi-use arts venue is comprised of a rotating art gallery for developing artists that doubles as a rehearsal / performance space for theatrical and musical events, experimental collaboration, workshops, and film screenings. Around the corner from the Hippodrome, right off of the Baltimore St/UMD Light Rail stop, EMP hopes to be part of the revitalization of a neighborhood just blocks away from the Inner Harbor and Mount Vernon.
