

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

3 November 2011

Media Contact: Katy Dubina

media@empcollective.org
443-223-7506

EMP Collective opens new gallery show, Craig Horky's Girls & Skulls, on 11-11-11

Craig Horky surrounded by his artwork. Photo by Jena McShane.

Yes. There will be girls. There will be skulls. There will be a party.

BALTIMORE, MD - EMP Collective is welcoming the arrival of Craig Horky's Girls & Skulls with a free opening party at EMP on 11-11-11 from 7-9PM. Girls & Skulls will run Friday-Monday 12PM-6PM until November 30th.

Craig Horky has done it all: arms dealing, illustrating, fine art, graphic design, tattoos, Bruce Springsteen covers, and is now coming to EMP! Based out of Lansing, MI, Craig Horky's work can be seen across the music sphere in the US, France, Germany, and the UK, as well as in commercials, apparel, magazines, newspapers, and various art books for the past decade or so.

Currently working on a comic with Top Shelf Productions and Steve Ekstrom, Mr. Horky is one busy guy, and EMP is thrilled at the chance to showcase his artwork. Check out Craig Horky's work at: craighorky.tumblr.com or gigposter.com

OR take a gander at this simple word association test EMP recently conducted with the artist that was met with very pleasing results:

food
coffee

sleep
death

fast
women

cheap
women

baby
kitten

ABOUT EMP COLLECTIVE

Founded in 2010, EMP Collective is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to creating and producing multi-media events by collaborating with artists from all backgrounds, across disciplines. EMP Collective hopes to nourish emerging artists with its new incubator space (creatively named EMP) at 306 W Redwood Street, in the forgotten Loft District of Baltimore. Funded by the Downtown Partnership of Baltimore's Operation Storefront grant, this multi-use arts venue is comprised of a rotating art gallery for developing artists that doubles as a rehearsal / performance space for theatrical and musical events, experimental collaboration, workshops, and film screenings. Around the corner from the Hippodrome, right off of the Baltimore St/UMD Light Rail stop, EMP hopes to be part of the revitalization of a neighborhood just blocks away from the Inner Harbor and Mount Vernon.

JOIN US.

www.empcollective.org

306 West Redwood Street Baltimore, MD 21201

Email: media@empcollective.org

Press: 443-223-7506

- # # # -